11. Limited warranties

11.1 We do not warrant or represent:

- (a) the completeness or accuracy of the information published on our website;
- (b) that the material on the website is up to date; or
- (c) that the website or any service on the website will remain available.

11.2 We reserve the right to discontinue or alter any or all of our website services, and to stop publishing our website, at any time in our sole discretion without notice or explanation; and save to the extent expressly provided otherwise in these terms and conditions, you will not be entitled to any compensation or other payment upon the discontinuance or alteration of any website services, or if we stop publishing the website.

11.3 To the maximum extent permitted by applicable law and subject to Section 12.1, we exclude all representations and warranties relating to the subject matter of these terms and conditions, our website and the use of our website.

12. Limitations and exclusions of liability

12.1 Nothing in a contract under these terms and conditions will:

- (a) limit or exclude any liability for death or personal injury resulting from negligence;
- (b) limit or exclude any liability for fraud or fraudulent misrepresentation;
- (c) limit any liabilities in any way that is not permitted under applicable law; or
- (d) exclude any liabilities that may not be excluded under applicable law.

- 12.2 The limitations and exclusions of liability set out in this Section 12 and elsewhere in a contract under these terms and conditions:
- (a) are subject to Section 12.1; and
  - (b) govern all liabilities arising under that contract or relating to the subject matter of that contract, including liabilities arising in contract, in tort (including negligence) and for breach of statutory duty, except to the extent expressly provided otherwise in that contract.
- 12.3 To the extent that our website and the information and services on our website are provided free of charge, we will not be liable for any loss or damage of any nature.
- 12.4 We will not be liable to you in respect of any losses arising out of any event or events beyond our reasonable control.
- 12.5 We will not be liable to you in respect of any business losses, including (without limitation) loss of or damage to profits, income, revenue, use, production, anticipated savings, business, contracts, commercial opportunities or goodwill.
- 12.6 We will not be liable to you in respect of any loss or corruption of any data, database or software.
- 12.7 We will not be liable to you in respect of any special, indirect or consequential loss or damage.
- 12.8 You accept that we have an interest in limiting the personal liability of our officers and employees and, having regard to that interest, you acknowledge that we are a limited liability entity; you agree that you will not bring any claim personally against our officers or employees in respect of any losses you suffer in connection with the website or these terms and conditions (this will not, of course, limit or exclude the liability of the limited liability entity itself for the acts and omissions of our officers and employees).

13. Breaches of these terms and conditions

- 13.1 Without prejudice to our other rights under these terms and conditions, if you breach these terms and conditions in any way, or if we reasonably suspect that you have breached these terms and conditions in any way, we may:
- (a) send you one or more formal warnings;
  - (b) temporarily suspend your access to our website;
  - (c) permanently prohibit you from accessing our website;
  - (d) block computers using your IP address from accessing our website;
  - (e) contact any or all of your internet service providers and request that they block your access to our website;
  - (f) commence legal action against you, whether for breach of contract or otherwise; and/or
  - (g) suspend or delete your account on our website.

- 13.2 Where we suspend or prohibit or block your access to our website or a part of our website, you must not take any action to circumvent such suspension or prohibition or blocking (including without limitation creating and/or using a different account).

14. Variation

- 14.1 We may revise these terms and conditions from time to time.
- 14.2 The revised terms and conditions shall apply to the use of our website from the date of publication of the revised terms and conditions on the website, and you hereby waive any right you may otherwise have to be notified of, or to consent to, revisions of these terms and conditions. / We will give you written notice of any revision of these terms and conditions, and the revised terms and conditions will apply to the use of our website from the date that we give you such notice; if you do not agree to the revised terms and conditions, you must stop using our website.
- 14.3 If you have given your express agreement to these terms and conditions, we will ask for your express agreement to any revision of these terms and conditions; and if you do not give your express agreement to the revised terms and conditions within such period as we may specify, we will disable or delete your account on the website, and you must stop using the website.

15. Assignment

- 15.1 You hereby agree that we may assign, transfer, sub-contract or otherwise deal with our rights and/or obligations under these terms and conditions.
- 15.2 You may not without our prior written consent assign, transfer, sub-contract or otherwise deal with any of your rights and/or obligations under these terms and conditions.

16. Severability

- 16.1 If a provision of a contract under these terms and conditions is determined by any court or other competent authority to be unlawful and/or unenforceable, the other provisions will continue in effect.
- 16.2 If any unlawful and/or unenforceable provision of a contract under these terms and conditions would be lawful or enforceable if part of it were deleted, that part will be deemed to be deleted, and the rest of the provision will continue in effect.

17. Third party rights

- 17.1 A contract under these terms and conditions is for our benefit and your benefit, and is not intended to benefit or be enforceable by any third party.
- 17.2 The exercise of the parties' rights under a contract under these terms and conditions is not subject to the consent of any third party.

18. Entire agreement

- 18.1 Subject to Section 12.1, these terms and conditions, together with our privacy and cookies policy, shall constitute the entire agreement between you and us in relation to your use of our website and shall supersede all previous agreements between you and us in relation to your use of our website.

19. Law and jurisdiction

- 19.1 A contract under these terms and conditions shall be governed by and construed in accordance with English law.
- 19.2 Any disputes relating to a contract under these terms and conditions shall be subject to the jurisdiction of the courts of England.

Drafting notes for free website terms and conditions

Our website terms and conditions template has been designed for use on websites with basic interactive features, such as blogs, bulletin boards and forum-based sites. It includes, amongst other things, a licence specifying how the website may be used, a disclaimer of liability, a statutory disclosures section and rules on user-contributed content. It is an extended version of our website disclaimer document.

Free website terms and conditions body

Section 1 - Introduction

Section 1.2

The completed document should be easily accessible on the website, with a link from every page.

Section 1.3

Under what circumstances will users be asked to give their express consent to the terms of this document?

Ideally, from a legal perspective, all users would be asked to expressly agree to the terms of the document. However, in practice, express consent is rarely sought from casual website visitors. On the other hand, it is easy to obtain the express consent of users who register with the website or submit any material to the website, e.g. by clicking "I accept" on an electronic version of the document. You should retain evidence of the acceptance of the document terms by each such user.

Section 1.4

Are there any age restrictions on the use of the website?

What is the minimum age for website users?

The use of websites by minors can be legally problematic. There are a number of different legal issues. For example, under English law, contracts may be unenforceable against minors. Another issue concerns data protection. The law of data protection imposes additional burdens in relation to the processing of any personal data of a minor and personal data provided by a minor. The effects of the law of indecency may also depend upon whether a website is accessible by minors. Obviously, the inclusion of a requirement in your terms and conditions that minors refrain from using a website is no guarantee that they will do so. Where your website is directed at, or likely to be used by, minors, we recommend that you seek specialist legal advice.

Section 1.5

Does the website use cookies (including session cookies and third party cookies)?

What is the title of the document on the website that contains cookie information?

The inclusion of this statement in your website legal documents will not in itself satisfy the requirements of the Privacy and Electronic Communications (EC Directive) Regulations 2003 (as amended) concerning consent to the use of cookies. Guidance concerning methods of obtaining such consent is included on the Information Commissioner's website (<http://www.ico.gov.uk>).

Section 3 - Copyright notice

Section 3.1

What was the year of first publication of the relevant copyright material (or the range of years)? Who is the principal owner of copyright in the website?

Section 4 - Licence to use website

The scope of the licence to use will vary with each site. Consider carefully exactly what your users should be allowed to do with your website and material on your website.

Section 4.1

(d) - Will audio and/or video files be published on the website?

(e) - Will the website make available any dynamic services to users? Describe the website services in question.

Section 4.3

Optional element.

For what purposes may the website be used?

Section 4.6

Are users permitted to redistribute any specific content from the website (e.g. newsletters)?

What types of content are redistributable? In what formats may redistributable content be redistributed? To whom may redistributable content be redistributed?

Section 5 - Acceptable use

Section 5.1

(e) - Should all automated interactions with the website be prohibited?

(f) - Will the website incorporate a robots.txt file?

(g) - Should users be prohibited from using the website for direct marketing activity?

Section 5.2

Should the use of data collected from the website to contact people and businesses be prohibited?

Section 5.3

What standard of veracity etc should user-submitted content meet?

Section 6 - Registration and accounts

Section 6.1

Do any eligibility criteria apply to account registration?

What eligibility criteria apply?

Section 6.2

How do users register with the website?

Section 6.3

Will users be permitted to share their accounts?

Section 6.5

Are users permitted to use another person's account on the website with the permission of that other person?

Section 7 - User IDs and passwords

Section 7.1

How will users' login details be generated?

Section 8 - Cancellation and suspension of account

Section 8.1

Which of these general rights over user accounts does the website operator have?

Section 8.2

How can a user cancel his or her account on the website?

Section 9 - Your content: licence

Section 9.2

What type of licence do users grant to the website operator? What does the licence allow the website operator to do with user content?

Section 9.4

Should the website operator be granted a right to bring proceedings in respect of third party infringements?

Section 9.5

Should users be asked to waive their moral rights (such as the right of paternity and the right to object to derogatory treatment) in the content they submit to the website?

Section 9.6

Can users edit their own content after it has been posted to the website?

Section 10 - Your content: rules

Section 10.2

This very general prohibition against unlawful user content may be supplemented by rules relating to specific kinds of illegality, as well as prohibitions upon lawful but undesirable content.

Section 10.3

(f) - Do you want to expressly prohibit the publication by users of information about how to commit crimes and the promotion of criminal activities?

(l) - Should the depiction of violence be prohibited? Should the prohibition on depicting violence be limited to explicit etc violence?

(m) - Should pornographic material be prohibited? Should the prohibition on pornographic material be supplemented with a prohibition on lewd, suggestive or sexually explicit material?

(n) - Should untrue, false, inaccurate or misleading content be prohibited?

(o) - Should potentially dangerous advice be prohibited?

(p) - Should spam be prohibited?

(q) - Should offensive etc material be prohibited?

(r) - Should annoying etc material be prohibited?

Section 12 - Limitations and exclusions of liability

Contractual limitations and exclusions of liability are regulated and controlled by law, and the courts may rule that particular limitations and exclusions of liability in contracts are unenforceable.

The courts are particularly likely to intervene where a party is seeking to rely on a limitation or exclusion of liability in its standard terms and conditions, but will also sometimes intervene where a term has been individually negotiated.

The courts may be more likely to rule that provisions excluding liability, as opposed to those merely limiting liability, are unenforceable.

If there is a risk that any particular limitation or exclusion of liability will be found to be unenforceable by the courts, that provision should be drafted as an independent term, and be numbered separately from the other provisions.

It may improve the chances of a limitation or exclusion of liability being found to be enforceable if the party seeking to rely upon it specifically drew it to the attention of the other party before the contract was entered into.

Exclusions and limitations of liability in UK contracts are primarily regulated by the Unfair Contract Terms Act 1977 ("UCTA").

Contracts regulated by UCTA cannot exclude or restrict a party's liability for death or personal injury resulting from negligence (Section 2(1), UCTA).

Except insofar as the relevant term satisfies the requirements of reasonableness, such contracts cannot exclude or restrict liability: (i) for negligence (which includes a breach of an express or implied contractual obligation to take reasonable care or exercise reasonable skill) (Section 2(2), UCTA); or (ii) for misrepresentation (Section 3, Misrepresentation Act 1967).

In addition, if a contract is regulated by UCTA, and one of the parties is dealing on the other's written standard terms of business, then except insofar as the relevant contractual term satisfies the requirements of reasonableness the other party cannot: (i) exclude or restrict his liability in respect of a breach of contract; or (ii) claim to be entitled to render a contractual performance substantially different from that which was reasonably expected of him; or (iii) claim to be entitled, in respect of the whole or any part of his contractual obligation, to render no contractual performance at all (see Section 3, UCTA).

UCTA includes various other restrictions, particularly in the case of contracts for the sale of goods and contracts under which possession or ownership of goods passes.

If you wish to try to limit/exclude for liability in respect of reckless, deliberate, personal and/or repudiatory breaches of contract, you should specify this in relation to the relevant provision (for example, using the following wording: "The limitations and exclusions of liability in this Clause [number] will apply whether or not the liability in question arises out of any reckless, deliberate, personal and/or repudiatory conduct or breach of contract"). In many circumstances, however, the courts will find these types of limitations and exclusions to be unenforceable.

Somewhat different rules apply to limitations of liability in contracts with consumers, and these provisions should not be used in relation to such contracts.

These guidance notes provide a very incomplete and basic overview of a complex subject. Accordingly, you should take legal advice if you may wish to rely upon a limitation or exclusion of liability.

Section 12.1

Do not delete this provision (except upon legal advice). Without this provision, the specific limitations and exclusions of liability in the document are more likely to be unenforceable.

Section 12.3

Do you want to attempt to exclude all liability for free services and information?

This sort of exclusion is quite common, but unlikely to be enforceable in court.

Section 12.7

"Consequential loss" has a special meaning in English law: it means any loss that, whilst not arising naturally from the breach, was specifically in the contemplation of the parties when the contract was made.

Section 12.8

If the website operator is a limited liability entity (e.g. a limited company), do you want to expressly exclude liability on the part of officers and employees?

Section 14 - Variation

Changes to legal documents published on a website will not generally be retrospectively effective, and variations without notice to and/or consent from relevant users may be ineffective.

Section 14.2

Will website users be notified of changes to the document?

Section 14.3

Will registered users be required to consent to variations?

Section 17 - Third party rights

This provision is designed to exclude any rights a third party may have under the Contracts (Rights of Third Parties) Act 1999.

Section 18 - Entire agreement

Section 18.1

What other documents govern the use of the website?

Section 19 - Law and jurisdiction

The questions of which law governs a document and where disputes relating to the document may be litigated are two distinct questions.

Section 19.1

Which law should govern the document?

This document has been drafted to comply with English law, and the governing law provision should not be changed without obtaining expert advice from a lawyer qualified in the appropriate jurisdiction. In some circumstances the courts will apply provisions of their local law, such as local competition law or consumer protection law, irrespective of a choice of law clause.

Section 19.2

Should the jurisdiction granted be exclusive or non-exclusive? Choose "non-exclusive" jurisdiction if you may want to enforce the terms and conditions against users outside England and Wales. Otherwise, choose "exclusive jurisdiction". The courts of which country or jurisdiction should adjudicate disputes under the document?

In some circumstances your jurisdiction clause may be overridden by the courts.

Section 20 - Statutory and regulatory disclosures

Do the Electronic Commerce (EC Directive) Regulations 2002 apply to the website or is the website operator registered for VAT?

This section can be deleted where website operator is not registered for VAT and the Electronic Commerce (EC Directive) Regulations 2002 do not apply. Generally, those Regulations will apply unless a website is entirely non-commercial, i.e. where a website does not offer any goods or services and does not involve any remuneration (which includes remuneration for carrying AdSense or other advertising).

Section 20.1

Is the website operator registered in a trade or similar register that is available to the public?

What is the name of the trade register? At what URL can the trade register be found? What is the website operator's registration number?

The Electronic Commerce (EC Directive) Regulations 2002 provide that if you are "registered in a trade or similar register available to the public", you must provide "details of the register in which the service provider is entered and his registration number, or equivalent means of identification in that register".

Section 20.2

Is the website operator subject to an authorisation scheme (e.g. under financial services legislation)?

What is the name of the authorisation scheme to which the website operator is subject? What authority supervises the authorisation scheme?

The Electronic Commerce (EC Directive) Regulations 2002 provide that "where the provision of the service is subject to an authorisation scheme" you must provide "the particulars of the relevant supervisory authority".

Section 20.3

Is the service provider a member of a regulated profession (e.g. solicitors)?

What is the website operator's professional title? Which professional body regulates the website operator? In which jurisdiction was the professional title granted? What is the name of the document containing the rules governing the profession? At what URL can the rules be found?

The Electronic Commerce (EC Directive) Regulations 2002 provide that if "the service provider exercises a regulated profession", it must provide "(i) the details of any professional body or similar institution with which the service provider is registered; (ii) his professional title and the member State where that title has been granted; (iii) a reference to the professional rules applicable to the service provider in the member State of establishment and the means to access them".

Section 20.4

Does the website operator subscribe to any codes of conduct?

Identify the codes of conduct in question. Where can the codes be viewed?

The Electronic Commerce (EC Directive) Regulations 2002 provide that "a service provider shall indicate which relevant codes of conduct he subscribes to and give information on how those codes can be consulted electronically".

Section 20.5

Is the website operator registered for VAT?

What is the website operator's VAT number?

Section 21 - Our details

UK companies must provide their corporate names, their registration numbers, their place of registration and their registered office address on their websites (although not necessarily in this document).

Sole traders and partnerships that carry on a business in the UK under a "business name" (i.e. a name which is not the name of the trader/names of the partners or certain other specified classes of name) must also make certain website disclosures: (i) in the case of a sole trader, the individual's name; (ii) in the case of a partnership, the name of each member of the partnership; and (iii) in either case, in relation to each person named, an address in the UK at which service of any document relating in any way to the business will be effective. All websites covered by the Electronic Commerce (EC Directive) Regulations 2002 must provide a geographic address (not a PO Box number) and an email address. All website operators covered by the Provision of Services Regulations 2009 must also provide a telephone number.

Section 21.1

What is the name of the company, partnership, individual or other legal person or entity that owns and operates the website?

Section 21.2

Is the website operator a company?

In what jurisdiction is the website operator registered? What is the website operator's company registration number or equivalent? What is the website operator's registered address?

Section 21.3

Optional element.

Where is the website operator's head office or principal place of business?

Section 21.4

What is the website operator's contact email address? What is the website operator's contact telephone number?
